

transitioning from noble energy to chevron

customer, vendor and supplier frequently asked questions

Noble customers, vendors and suppliers likely have questions about the Chevron acquisition and its potential impacts. This document provides answers to common questions. If you are unable to find the answer to your question among those provided, you may contact us via email. For supply chain management inquiries, please contact SCMinquiry@chevron.com. For all other inquiries, please contact nobleinquiries@chevron.com.

customer questions

How will Chevron's acquisitions of Noble impact me?

We are working to integrate the companies as seamlessly and efficiently as possible, and we do not anticipate any disruptions to our operations or business continuity. We will share more information, if appropriate, as integration activities continue and impacts are better understood.

What do I stand to gain from the deal? What are the benefits to me?

Chevron is a world class energy company and a committed partner of choice in the communities where we operate. We value our relationships with our customers, and we are committed to delivering world class performance while putting the highest priority on the health and safety of our workforce, and protection of our assets, communities and the environment.

Will Chevron honor agreements that Noble made?

Chevron will honor the terms of existing agreements you may have with Noble. If changes to an agreement are needed, the amendment or cancellation process will be followed based on the terms outlined in the agreement.

Do I have a new point of contact?

You should continue to work with your existing Noble contact until further notice. You will be notified of any changes, should there be any, as integration activities progress.

Who do I call if I have a problem or concern?

You should continue to work with your existing Noble contact to address any issues or concerns you may have. Or, you may contact us via email. For supply chain management inquiries, please contact SCMinquiry@chevron.com. For all other inquiries, please contact nobleinquiries@chevron.com.

vendor and supplier questions

How will Chevron's acquisition of Noble affect my company?

We are working to integrate the companies as seamlessly and efficiently as possible, and we do not anticipate any disruptions to our operations or business continuity. We will share more information, if appropriate, as integration activities continue and impacts are better understood.

What is the legal name of the new organization?

Upon the close of the transaction, Noble Energy, Inc. and its subsidiaries and affiliates will continue to operate as a wholly owned subsidiary of Chevron. You will receive additional information under your agreement if your contract counterparty name, notice information or other information will be updated.

Where and to whom should invoices be sent now?

There is no change to the invoicing process at this time. You should continue to submit invoices for payment based on the instructions specified in your agreement with Noble.

Are contracts or purchase orders already in place still valid? If so, for how long?

Contractual obligations that Noble has with its suppliers and service providers will be inherited by Chevron and will continue to be honored based on the terms of those agreements. As integration activities progress, teams from both companies will review agreements to determine procurement and contracting needs.

Will policies regarding how you select vendors/suppliers change?

Any decisions on supplier or vendor selection will be done thoughtfully and fairly, as has always been our practice. Chevron is committed to maintaining a strong and focused commitment to value-adding supplier diversity, small business and local content initiatives, and open and direct dialogue with strict confidentiality of information.

Will we be required to ship materials to a different location?

You should continue to ship materials to the same location(s) unless otherwise directed.

Will we still work with the same purchasing agent(s)?

You should continue to work with your current Noble contact until further notice.

Do you expect the volume that you have been ordering to increase or decrease?

We do not anticipate any changes to ordering volumes at this time.

Will I receive notice if my services are cancelled?

Existing contractual agreements of Chevron and Noble entities will continue to be honored. Any changes to existing supplier relationships will be executed based on the terms of a contract, including the applicable notice timing provisions.