

Respecting the Wayúu Way of Life

La Guajira Province, Colombia

Victor Epieyu, Chevron employee

Chevron has been here, in this land, for over 30 years.

Paul Pinedo, Chevron employee

Chevron came to our community, to our reservation, in an effort to be open to the community, and helped us learn skills so that we can get a good job. Now I am a petroleum engineer working with Chevron.

Victor Epieyu

Chevron implemented this farm jointly with another partner.

Woman

To eat something grown with the effort of the community, that was not being done. Now we have self-sustainable crops, and we enjoy the results.

Fisherman

The support we have received is very important. It is necessary in developing our fishing activities, which is our livelihood.

Artisan

From the heart, we are very grateful to Chevron. Without their support we would not have been able to accomplish all that has been done within the Wayúu community, and to achieve all this growth.

Chevron invests in the Wayúu communities to help them create a better future. Our project plants sustainable farms to improve nutrition, train and equip local fishermen, and help artisans preserve their culture while increasing their income.

Victor Epieyu

I think the Wayúu people are very committed to work, and committed to improving their livelihoods, and the livelihoods of their families. Chevron has learned a lot from the Wayúu.
